

The Wet Spot

By Basil (original post)

There's one spot in one of the public rooms (bar, restaurant, lobby, ???) that keeps turning up with a wet spot—a tiny little “pool” of water no more than a couple inches across. The staff has checked all the plumbing, etc., and no-one can account for water accumulating right there.

This would be a minor annoyance save for one thing: the water is always ruddy, as if it bore a lot of dissolved iron-rust . . .

Or a little blood.
