Babbling Brook

Fresh, clean drinking water has appeared, free of charge, in one of the poor areas of London. It all comes from a mysterious pump that appeared overnight in the middle of one of the worst fogs this year.

No one knows who put it there or why. Nor do they know what technology they used to create it so noiselessly.

Any curious scientist who tests the water finds it 100% pure and free of any known contaminants.

So far...
